Jubilee wants tax break

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Jubilee Casino is in a pickle, and they are hoping to get the help of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to get out of it.

Casino officials met with members of the board Thursday to try to get their taxes lowered. Apparently, through a misunderstanding, the casino believed it would be paying $90,000 a year in property taxes to the county and has received a bill for more than $450,000.

Chief Operating Officer of Jubilee Casino George Baxter said the casino is looking at paying more than $700,000 in taxes this year now.

"We have to report out earnings to the SEC. We have a $90,000 assessment on the books for taxes," Baxter said.

The property owned by the casino cost more than $34,613,330 to build and develop, but the property is assessed at $5,676,500 to come up with a total tax bill of just over $455,000, Hancock County Chief Assessor Lee Bennett said.

"20 acres of our property is wetlands and is unuseable. It is questionable that the casino is taxable since it is on state property. We have paid $2 million into the county this year," Baxter said.

The $2 million came from a percentage of the casino's gross tax revenues.

Bennett said that although some of the property belongs to the state and the county, it is leased by Jubilee and any improvements that are made to it are taxable.

Hancock County Tax Assessor Eddie Murtagh said the casino would pay more than $90,000 on just the slot machines that are inside the casino.

Casino officials, Hancock County Board of Supervisors attorney Gerald Gex and Murtagh are expected to sit down together sometime this week to discuss what exactly, if anything, can be done about the situation.

Chancery Clerk's slot draws first candidate

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

In what potentially will be a heated race with a large number of contenders, Michael R. Schaefer of Diamondhead is the first to announce that he will seek the office of Hancock County Chancery Clerk in the August Primaries.

Schaefer is also the first candidate to announce in The Sea Coast Echo that he will seek election in August.

E. Michael Nicaise, chancery clerk for four terms, announced his retirement last month and that he will not seek re-election.

Schaefer, who is seeking the Republican nomination in the August Primary, is a retired Naval Officer, and is currently Chief of PA Technical Audit Program at Martin Marietta, Michoud.

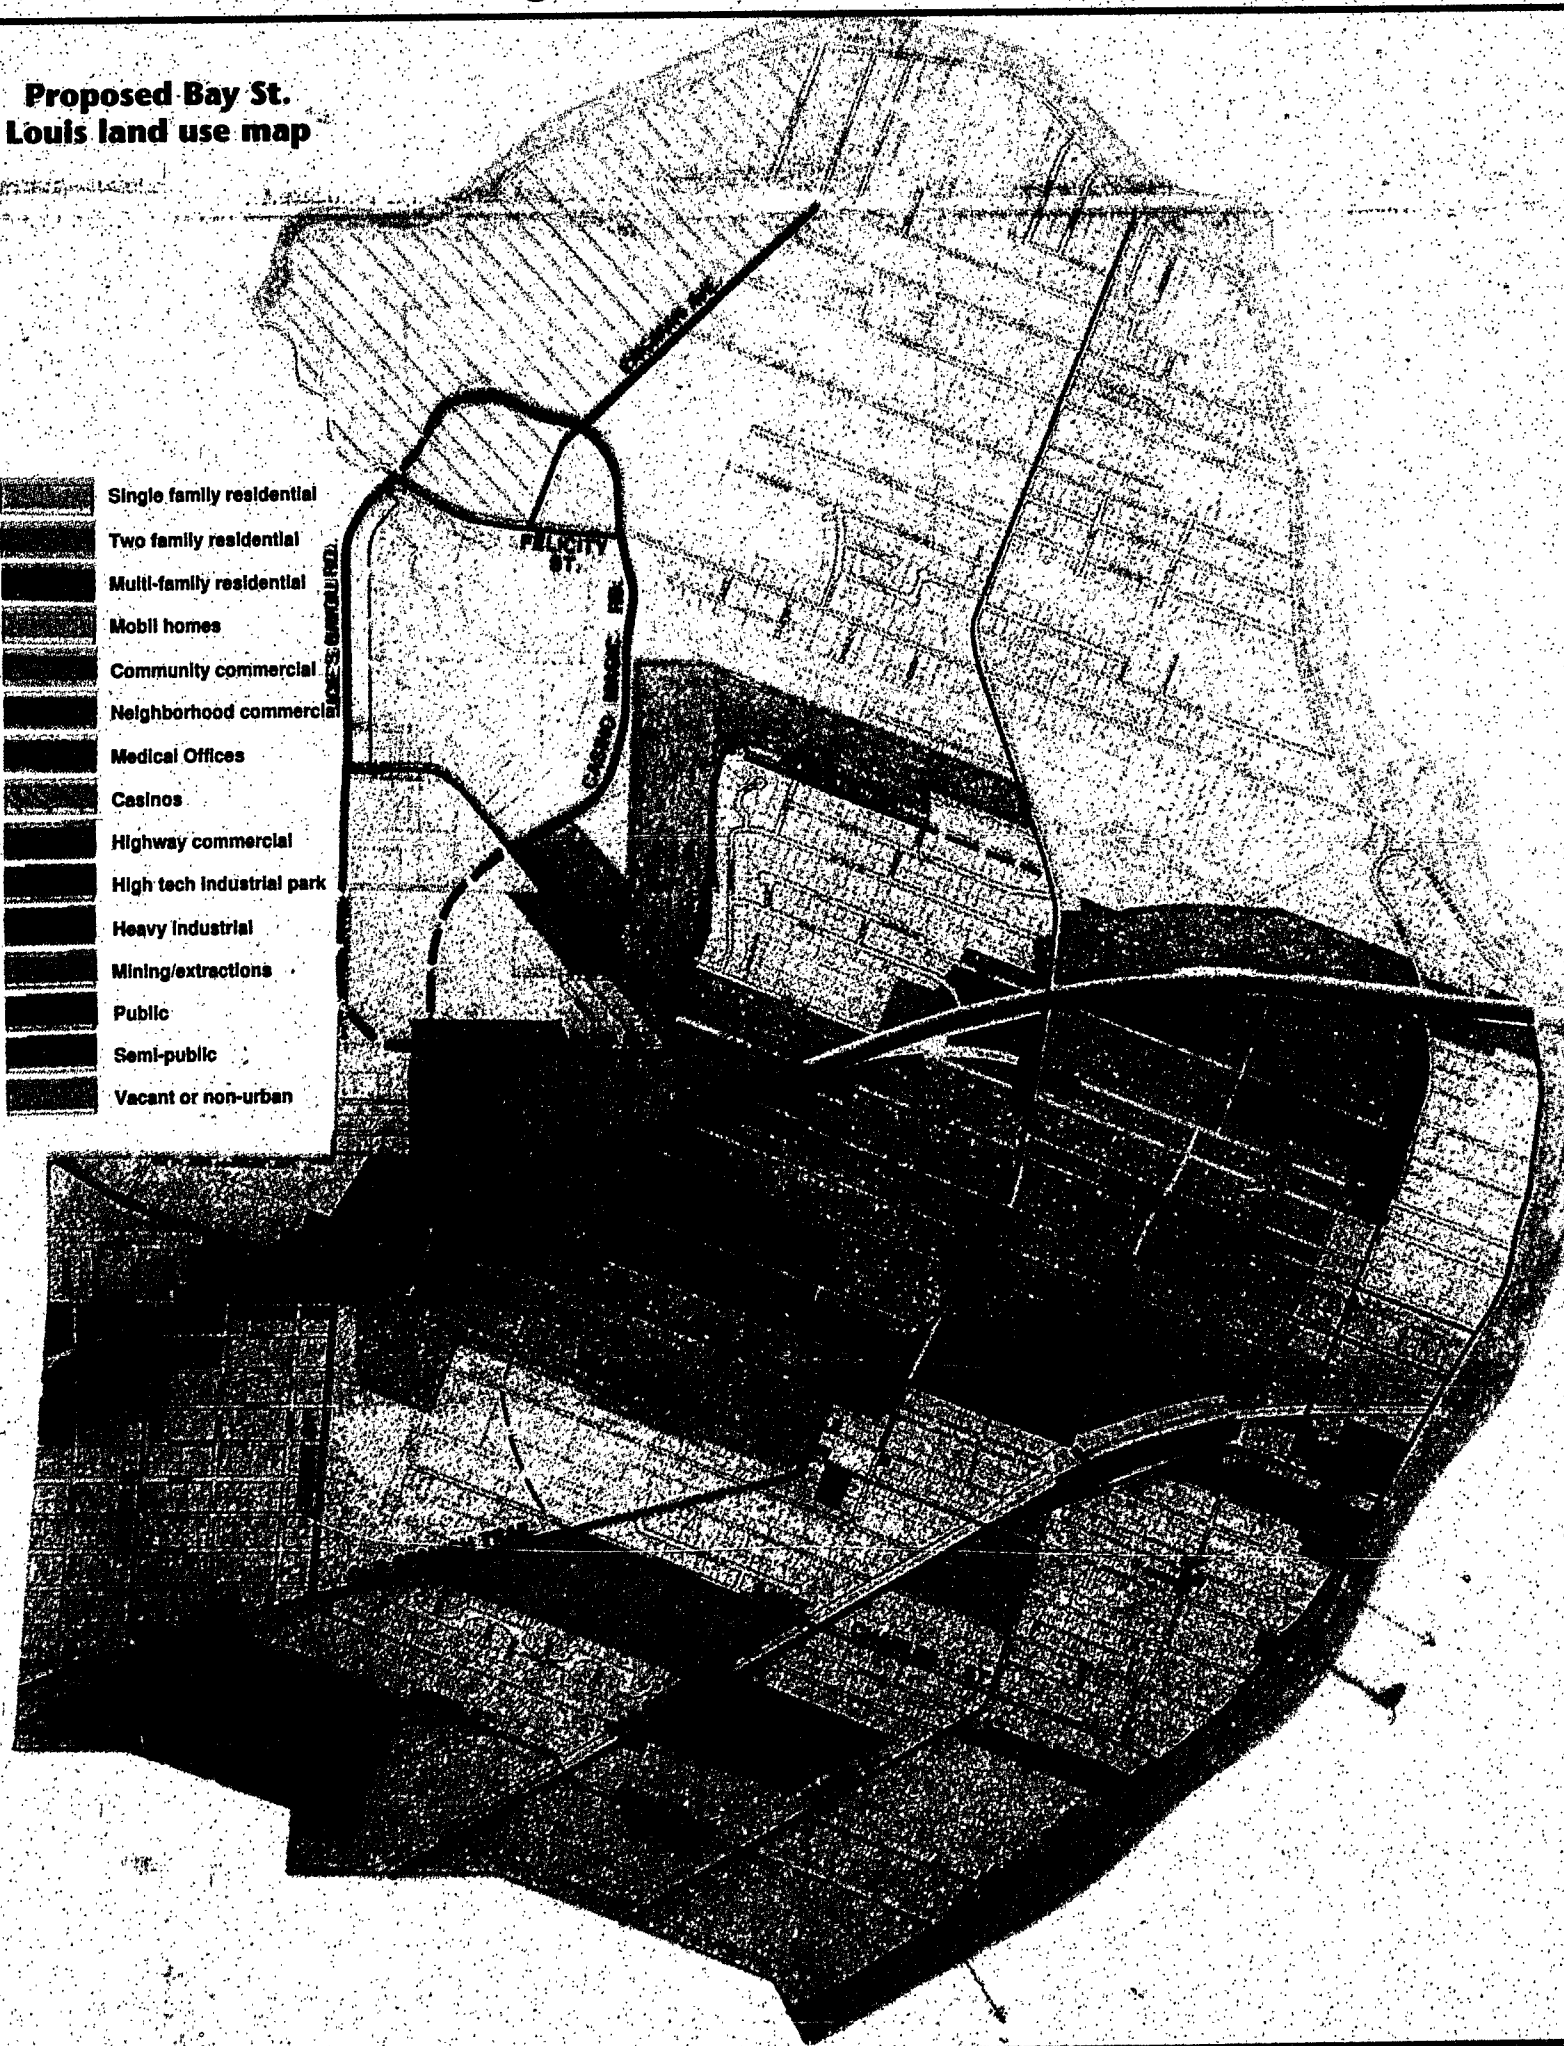

A resident of Diamondhead, he has a BS in accounting from the University of New Orleans and a MBA from the University of Mississippi, finance emphasis.

During Nicaise's tenure as Chancery Clerk there have been numerous improvements in the office.

The names of numerous candidate potentials have been circulated around the county, as to who will be seeking the chancery clerk's position after Nicaise made it known that he was officially not seeking re-election.

Future Bay land use outlined in map

Proposed Bay St. Louis land use map

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A huge, colorful map rests against a City Hall Annex wall, proposing how Bay St. Louis will develop over the next 25 years.

It envisions a bustling little Gulf Coast resort town with new and improved roadways, new businesses, and other possibilities: another marina, an extra casino and a shopping center or hotel development.

City officials hope to have the map, and the plan that it's based on, up for a public hearing and adoption early next year.

Adoption of the plan won't automatically change any zoning that exists in town. But once it's in place, almost every decision city officials make for years to come will be based on what the plan says.

Here's how Bay St. Louis would develop, under the plan drafted by Continental Consultants and city planning officials:

—U.S. Highway 90, between the Bay bridge entrance and Dunbar Avenue is depicted as a large area awaiting development. The area south of the highway, including the semi-nary property, is proposed for community commercial development — such as a regional shopping mall or hotel development.

North of the highway, between the shoreline and Second Street, planners recommend neighborhood commercial development, such as retail stores and personal service enterprises.

And consultants say there's a potential for development of a new marina on a vast, now-vacant parcel north of the highway. The plan recognizes that there are potential wetlands permit problems, however, to be overcome if a marina is to materialize on the inland site.

—North and South of Railroad Avenue, from St. Charles St. to the city limits. Future land uses proposed include a high technology business and vocational training campus on St. Charles, on a 40- to 50-acre tract. The property was approved for similar uses several years ago, but hasn't been developed as such.

Les Fillingame, former chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, said a consensus developed during the planning process that a high-tech busi-

HMC expansion nears completion

Special to the Echo
Hancock Medical Center will soon boast of nearly 8,000 square feet of enhanced outpatient services in late January with the opening of its new expansion.

Finishing touches are now being completed on the structure which fronts U.S. Hwy. 90, according to HMC administrator Don Henderson.

"We are investing significant resources to improve convenience and accessibility of services to the public," he said.

The areas targeted for improvements were those the patient needs first upon arrival at the hospital — emergency care, diagnostics and surgery. An additional 20 parking spaces have been created to serve the expansion area.

"We have refocused our philosophy on improving the way the patients are treated and expediting the services they need," Henderson said.

LOBBY

The spacious new lobby will feature five points for registration, with separate outpatient and emergency areas. This will decrease the waiting time significantly, according to the administrator. In addition, enhanced computer equipment has been added for ease in registration.

The lobby will have two large waiting areas encased by glass panels offering a panoramic view of the highway and adjacent walking track. The Hancock Medical Center Auxiliary will man an assistance station, and three vending machines will be available around the clock.

EXPANDED DEPARTMENTS

Four treatment areas will be added to the emergency room, where up to nine patients can be treated simultaneously, said Henderson. Included will be one specialty treatment area for trauma and orthopedics.

In the cardiopulmonary department, new blood gas testing equipment will be added, as well as an expanded stress test laboratory for cardiac patients.

A state-of-the-art helical spiral scanner has been purchased for the radiology department, where patients requiring cat scans will benefit from advanced technology. The new equipment allows a shorter test time, said radiologic technologist Jeanie Moran.

A radiography suite with full capabilities and expanded mammography suite have been added as well. The latter will provide increased patient privacy with a separate area to view educational materials.

Three new surgery suites will include two for general surgery and one for endoscopic procedures. The urology suite will house a new cystoscopy table, the finest of its kind on the Gulf Coast, said Henderson.

"All major outpatient departments will be conveniently located with a short walking distance for the patient, and all are very close to the registration area. A patient needing multiple tests can be processed in a short period of time."

"We are very proud of this expansion, and wish to thank the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the Hancock Medical Center Board of Trustees, our medical staff and community for making it possible," he said.

An open house and dedication ceremonies are planned for early spring. H. Gordon Myrick of Gulfport is contractor for the project.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Don't forget to recycle your Christmas tree. There is a section roped off by the Hancock County Civic Center, Longfellow Road to place your tree. You are asked to remove ornaments, lights and tinsel. The tree recycling is sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee. Remember, the recycled trees will be used as mulch for beautification projects this year around the county.

Well, 1995 is already here, and many are wondering where 1994 went.

The older one gets, the faster time seems to pass by. What happened last year is now history. Happenings cannot be changed, but I am sure there are things some wanted to do last year and never got to do them.

It is possible they can be done this year, but I would advise not to put them off too long, as next year will be here before we know it.

It seems a lot of things will be happening in the area during 1995.

To open 1995, Casino Magic's Inn will hold a grand opening on January 3.

In a short time the addition to Hancock Medical Center should be completed and also expanded parking for employees.

This will free up more space for the local hospital's visitors.

Later in the year, a new insurance claims office is to open, another large motel is to open, and there are several other businesses on the drawing board.

And who knows, maybe Highway 603's four-laning will be complete from Stennis Airport Drive to Highway 90.

It seems just about every day someone asks me when is Highway 603 going to be completed.

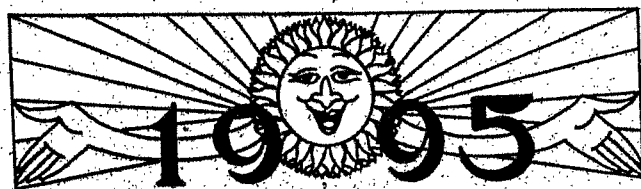

At the rate the work has been going lately, it still may be several years before the road is completed.

Many good things should happen in 1995 for Hancock Countians.

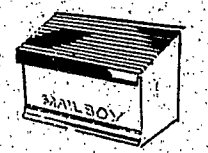

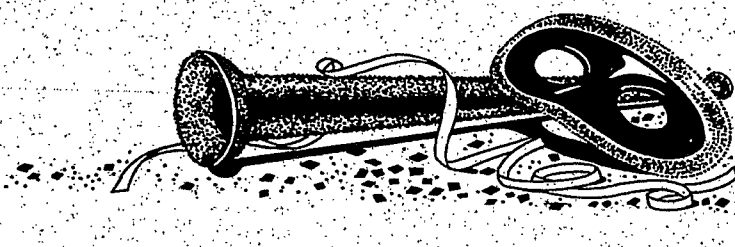

The continued improvements and beautification of median along Highway 90, a Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee's project, should really be underway this year.

We have a lot to look forward to in the year of 1995 in Hancock County.

It is hoped the year will be a great one for everyone.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Community's beautification efforts commended by chamber

Dear Editor:

As 1994 comes to an end, the Hancock Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee wishes to commend the people, businesses and governmental bodies of Hancock County for efforts to clean and beautify our county.

We in Hancock County have made tremendous progress this year: countywide garbage pickup and recycling, removal of illegal signs from many locations, landscaping/maintenance on Hwy. 90 as well as many individual clean-up and beautification efforts. Year round litter pickup by county prisoners is greatly helping to augment the efforts of the many citizens who volunteer to pick up their roads and streets.

The Committee had another extremely successful clean-up campaign in September. We have brought educational programs into all the schools and recycled telephone books and Christmas trees to name just a few of this year's projects.

As always, the basis for all this positive activity is the cooperative efforts of private citizens, businesses and government working together.

Abraham Lincoln in his Gettysburg address said that "government of the people by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth." Government works when each of us responds to our obligations as citizens to be "of and by the people" — we are the government. Government falters when we citizens are only concerned about what government is going to do for us. Not everyone can adopt a road, but everyone can refrain from littering and that includes flicking that cigarette butt out the car window or into a business's parking lot.

We hope for a bright economic future and getting our share of the tourism business. If we will all work to make Hancock County beautiful, clean and well-kept from county line to county line, we will not only get the business, we will keep it. Beautiful is indeed in our best interest.

Thank you one and all who have made it better to live in Hancock County in 1994.

Very truly yours,

Ellis C. Cuevas,
Chairman
Beautification Committee

No funding for measures to prevent juvenile crime, Court Justice says

Mississippi Supreme Court Justice Fred Banks Jr. says the 1995 Mississippi Legislature should fund a number of measures that could help prevent juvenile crime and rehabilitate young offenders.

The 1994 Legislature adopted several punitive measures suggested by a joint subcommittee of the Mississippi Bar Association's Criminal Justice Task Force, chaired by Banks, and the Legislature's Judicial Advisory Committee. But Banks says the goal of the juvenile justice system requires more in preventive measures.

"The system is neither established nor equipped to handle serious, violent crimes," says Banks. "That is why the subcommittee recommended transferring the most violent youths, or those accused of committing or attempting a crime with a deadly weapon, to the adult system — a suggestion endorsed by the Legislature."

Banks and other members of the subcommittee worked closely with the Association of Juvenile Court Judges, the Division of Youth Services, the Mississippi Prosecutors Association and the House Select Committee on Juvenile Justice and School Violence and other experts to offer legislators concrete proposals for improving the state's juvenile justice system.

"Punishment is important in reducing crime," says Banks, "but it is not enough, especially for juveniles who live for the moment and have no long-range values or perspectives."

England's crime rate peaked when capital punishment was meted out for such minor offenses as stealing a loaf of bread. Here in the United States, we are rapidly filling our prisons beyond capacity, with little effect on crime.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Running as Democrat in state not promising

The prognosis for Mississippi Democrats running for office in 1995, from governor on down to state legislator, and even sheriff, is certainly not promising, against the rising Republican tide.

In fact, 1995 could well be the crucial year in the transition that some Democrats have feared in years — a Republican takeover of public offices from top to bottom in Mississippi. Could this be the stamped date that has loomed on the horizon ever since 1964 when Mississippi voted overwhelmingly for Barry Goldwater?

That has virtually taken place in South Carolina and North Carolina and even to some extent in Georgia, all three Southern states with a political kinship to Mississippi.

Republicans have already penetrated Mississippi's highest visibility state level offices by winning the governor and lieutenant governor posts in 1991.

Next year the GOP will doubtless hope to cash in on the rising tide by taking over lower visibility statewide offices. Then, the question is: How far will the party realignment reach down to the county and local level?

There is no precedent for the partisan, political polarization that is being created in this state today. For a great many years this has been a "no-party" state in the sense of identification with a political party philosophy. People in Mississippi voted in Democratic primaries and elected tutative Democrats to office, because this was the system that controlled the mechanism of government.

But the Democratic Party, as such on the state level existed without any real organization and structure and never had a meaningful program with which its adherents could identify. As a result there is no real Democratic constituent base and the Democratic Party as such does nothing for Democratic office holders.

Now those who go forth as Democrats in 1995 to battle the well-organized, confident Republicans, to either hold on to the state offices they now hold or take back the governorship and lieutenant governorship, must virtually fly alone as individuals with no reservoir of strength or financing to draw upon.

To their credit, Mississippi Republicans have slowly built their party into a well-oiled, structured political force, doing of course what they do best to raise the money necessary to make it operate. Along the line they have had to take repeated defeats at the polls and work hard to consolidate their gains.

Mississippians had long boasted that they "voted for the man, not the party" in making their choices at the ballot box, even though overwhelmingly those choices also called themselves Democrats. Now the Republicans are out to reverse that. They are determined to make voters forget the person and vote for only those running with an (R) behind their names.

Politics has always been one of personalities in Mississippi. Is that day gone and now will the party label be the paramount issue?

Precisely in 1995 can such proven state public officials as Dick Molpus, Mike Moore, Steve Patterson, and Marshal Bennett not be elected only because they are nominees of the Mississippi Democratic Party?

The recent exchanging of political vows by Gov. Kirk Fordice and Lt. Gov. Eddie Briggs presages the formation of a Republican ticket headed by Fordice that will be put in the field as a team. The GOP candidates for the down-ticket offices at the state level can now be expected to be hand-picked, with the likelihood that a black, such as Wil Colom, the Columbus attorney who ran for state treasurer in 1991 is put on the ticket as a biracial showcase.

The advent of Republican ticketing may force the state-level Democratic candidates to do the same. In any case it appears virtually essential that the state office Democratic candidates realize they have a lot at stake on the candidacy of Dick Molpus, the present secretary of state who is almost certain to carry the Democratic standard for governor against Fordice.

There is much skepticism that Molpus, the uncolorful, nice-guy who has built his public career on making government work better and providing better education is too tame to put on the gloves with the stern-faced, shoot-from-the-hip Fordice who has already staked out the conservative populist ground on tax cuts, abortion, school prayer, crime and the like.

Many of his supporters believe Molpus must run as a populist in order to have a chance rather than attempt to sell good government reforms as his chief merchandise. After all, if being a Democrat means anything, it is to champion the interests of "those who have less," both white and black. There are still a lot of white Mississippians who "have less," as well, of course, as blacks.

The campaign of 1995 can provide an important opportunity for Democrats to make the party meaningful to Mississippians and especially convince middle income and lower income whites who have been smitten by the lure of Republicanism, that their real economic interests lie with Democrats and not the Republicans who want to dismantle governmental institutions the people have long benefitted from.

Waveland has a wish list for new year

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Waveland is starting the new year with a totally new administration, and the new mayor has a "wish list" of projects that he hopes can be started soon.

The first thing the new mayor and aldermen are planning on working on is the drainage problem in the city.

"We are making a list of priorities. There is no sense in doing extensive paving work when the drainage has to be fixed. It would be just throwing good money after bad," said Waveland Mayor John Mason.

Utility work will also be done with water and gas lines, Mason said, so that everything can be completed at one time.

The new administration is also looking at the possibility of putting the utility department under one "umbrella" system, Mason said.

"This would help the citizens so that when they call or have questions they can be directed quickly and efficiently to the person that they need to speak with," Mason said.

Something else new that is expected to begin is department head meetings.

Mason said that at least once a month he will meet with department heads to outline problems and determine solutions.

Concerning possible improvements and attractions that are planned, the city is looking at possibly funding them through federal grants.

"We are applying for a combination bike/walking track and sidewalk grant," Mason said.

The project is estimated to cost $952,000, without engineering fees included. But, the city is applying for a 80 percent matching grant to fund the project.

Mason said the 20 percent the city would have to come up with could be made up with in-kind work on the project.

Another possible grant item the city is looking at is for improvements to the Waveland Civic Center.

"The building has a lot of sentimental ties to the community and I hate to see it just sit there and not be able to be used," Mason said.

Mason is optimistic about the new year as are many of the residents of the city.

"I feel our city has already gotten off to a good start. The aldermen and I are working well together and we have already had two workshops," Mason said.

Mason also said he and alderman Louie Smolensky are planning to hold a meeting with the people of Ward 3 to get their input on improvements that can be made in that ward.

"I would be happy to do this in every ward. We can't fix all of the problems, but we can try," Mason said.

ness or college is the only type of industry the Bay St. Louis area should try to lure, within the existing corporate limits.

—Casino area at Engman Avenue and Casino Magic Road: Property owned and developed by Casino Magic, and surrounding vacant land, has created the need for a special use casino district, planners said.

While the plan doesn't recommend a second casino in the Cedar Point area, it makes provisions for that possible development.

In fact, provisions for dealing with the casino area's traffic in the future form the basis of other recommendations in the plan. The consultants recommend creating a traffic loop around the area bounded by Green Meadow, Joe's Bayou and Casino Magic roads.

And the plan envisions linking the downtown area with that loop via an extension of Bookter Street, along Keller and Labat Streets, ultimately connecting Drinkwater Road with Casino Magic Road.

Casino Magic's plans to create a direct access to Highway 90 are pictured in the plan. The existing Casino Magic Road would be extended across Blue Meadow, connecting with Drinkwater.

Fillingame said several portions of the transportation recommendations, including the Casino Magic extension, are needed regardless of whether a second casino develops in the Cedar Point area.

That's especially true, he said, if plans to fully develop the Casino Magic tract materialize, including construction of a major hotel, golf course and convention facilities.

And connecting such a development with the downtown area, via the new boulevard to Bookter Street, would lead to downtown revitalization, said city planner Buz Olsen.

"We're using the casino as a catalyst to develop the area," said Fillingame. "Hopefully, Bay St. Louis will be as big a draw for them in the future as they've been for us," he said of the casino.

Downtown and Depot area, from the Old Spanish Trail to the beach: Existing and stable land uses would be continued under the plan, with new zoning regulations governing historic preservation.

—Blue Meadow Road-high school area: A 41-acre vacant tract would be assembled to accommodate a new middle school next to the existing high school, and city recreation facilities would be expanded onto the tract.

The plan also calls for new apartment construction on Blue Meadow Road across from the high school. That same area was proposed for apartment development several months ago, but city officials rejected the proposal.

Fillingame said one key reason the apartment development was rejected by the city was the lack of a comprehensive plan for dealing with the traffic it would generate. The plan calls for widening Blue Meadow, and city officials already have authorized preliminary studies for that project.

Other multi-family development would be encouraged along Bookter Street and Union streets, under the plan.

When City Council gives a preliminary nod to the draft comprehensive plan, consultants are to prepare a capital improvements program as a guide for future spending.

In addition, city officials will base a new zoning ordinance on the detailed recommendations for future land uses, once a comprehensive plan is adopted.

Jubilee Casino. We have bent over backwards to try to help them," Murtagh said.

Many references were made to what the casino would be taking with them if they left, and that is what they felt they should be taxed on.

The supervisors asked that not even be discussed. They said they wished the best for the casino and want it to stay in Hancock County.

Baxter said a sewerage line has been put in that has been turned over partly to Waveland and to the county; more than $18 million a year is spent in payroll with 70 percent of employees being Hancock County residents; and improvements to Beach Boulevard and Shipyards Road are just some of the things the casino has invested their money into since its arrival.

January 1, starts a new tax year and whatever Jubilee has built or made improvements to will be added to their assessed value, Bennett said.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

Happy New Year all you droopy-headed, blood-shot eyed party animals. All right, shake it off folks, there's no time for a headache today. After all, today is the first day of a brand-spanking-new year in PARADISE.

According to statistics I researched in the back stall of a rest area on Interstate 10, 99.5 percent of all you dudes and dudettes have already broken your New Year's resolutions.

That especially goes for those of you sitting around the breakfast table this morning eating big sloppy jelly donuts and smoking cigarettes after vowing to give up sweets and Salsas just eight hours earlier.

On the other hand have NOT broken any of my New Year's resolutions.

After 35 years of making promises on New Year's, I have come to the conclusion that I have about as much willpower as a mouse does who's vowed to give up cheese.

First of all, I've learned to never make resolutions on New Year's Eve when I'm wearing one of those pointed party hats, blowing on one of those party blowing things and holding a half-empty bottle of cheap champagne.

Also, whenever I make my list of resolutions I never include words like diet, exercise, save, jogging, cigarettes or Budweiser.

This year I'm staying rather conservative on my promises to myself. And since nobody I know has a patent on New Year's resolutions, feel free to use any or all of my resolutions as your own.

Resolution 1: I vow never to fall asleep at the wheel of a helicopter while cruising the borders of North Korea.

Resolution 2: I promise to never spray paint peace signs on a judge's vehicle in Singapore (unless of course Madonna is administering the punishment with a big feather instead of a cane pole).

Resolution 3: I promise to not be a member of the newly-elected ultra-conservative House of Representatives. It's not that I disagree with their proposed policies, it's just that I wouldn't want a bulldog named Newt Gingrich as my boss.

Resolution 4: I promise to smoke every day in 1995. I have heard way too much from experts on the dangers of second-hand smoke. I therefore prefer to have my smoke first hand.

Resolution 5: I promise to have FUN all year. I promise to eat lots of crawfish. I promise to laugh heartily with my friends at the country club. I promise to spend lots of time on the beach with my best gal. I promise to be a total nut during Mardi Gras. That's right folks, I plan to have the same type of year I had last year. Great.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all you divorced dads out there who never missed a child support payment in 1994. Good work, dudes! Peace.

WEDDING

Billups-Lee

Kelli Susan Lee became the bride of Walter Gex Billups, of Hammond, La., at a 7:30 p.m. ceremony November 26, 1994, at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis. The Reverends Peter Mockler and Patrick Hayes officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Doctor and Mrs. Joseph Lee of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cameron Billups, Jr. and Captain and Mrs. Roger Boh, United States Navy Retired, of Pensacola, Fla.

Wedding music was provided by Joy Mehrtens, organist and Gary Benoit, trumpeter. Soloist was Mrs. Sharon Wilcox.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding an original candlelight silk satin gown created for her by Kathryn Bauman. The off-shoulder bodice was illuminated with a hand beaded lattice work motif. Pearls and bugle beads interspersed with silver thread work combined to create the elaborate bodice. Silk thread orange blossoms centered with pearls and Austrian crystals completed the design. Sheered, off the shoulder sleeves complimented the gown. The full slipper length fell to a full cathedral length.

To compliment her ensemble, the bride elected a hand-beaded diadem. Whose motif coordinated with the bridal gown. Imported double candlelight illusion fell to fingertip length and then flowed past the full length of the cathedral train. She carried a free-form cascade of Virginia "white" roses, gardenias and cascading stems of phalaenopsis orchids.

Maid of honor was Amy Catherine Lee. Bridesmaids were Suzanne Babin, Shannon Collins, Elizabeth DiGiorgio, DeeDee Elkins, Joli Ianneli, Dawn LeBlanc and Stacey Messina.

Flower girl was Mary Cameron Rollins. Junior bridesmaids were Heidi Lee and Ashley Rhodes. Guy Cameron Billups, Jr. served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Christopher Bass Guy Billups, III, Martin Dominique, Timothy Haller, Bradley Johnson, Matthew Perkins and Stephen Sausy.

Ushers were Thomas Bolton, Correy Gex, Joseph Lee, II, Michael Lee and Patrick Lee.

The reception was held at the Diamondhead Country Club.

Following a honeymoon trip to London, Paris, Florence and Rome, the couple will make their home in Hammond, La.

POS POWELL

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Charles H. Powell, son of Dallas L. Powell of Waveland, has been serving off the coast of Bosnia-Herzegovina with the amphibious assault ship USS Nassau, the lead ship of the USS Nassau Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

Powell is one of nearly 1,600 Sailors and 2,000 Marines who were ordered off the coast of Bosnia as a prudent measure in light of recent developments. U.S. naval forces have maintained a continuous presence in the Adriatic Sea in support of United Nations operations there since July 1992.

Powell left the U.S. in late October for a six-month overseas deployment with the ARG which includes USS Nassau, USS Gunston Hall, USS Ponce and the 22nd Marine Expeditionary Unit.

Departing from Norfolk, Va., Powell traveled to the Mediterranean Sea where the ARG was scheduled to take part in several multinational amphibious landing exercises.

The USS Nassau ARG and its embarked Marine force present a formidable presence, capable of moving nearly 500 miles a day and sustaining themselves for months forward deployed.

With helicopters, conventional landing craft and high speed air cushioned assault craft, the Nassau ARG can conduct a variety of missions from reconnaissance and amphibious assaults to evacuating civilians and providing humanitarian aid.

The 1988 graduate of Bay Senior High School in Bay St. Louis joined the Navy in February 1990.

New veterans
law enacted

One of the last and most important actions taken by Congress before adjourning the 1994 session was enactment of a new veterans reemployment law.

Officially called the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act of 1994, or USERRA, the new law clarifies and otherwise eliminates much of the confusion associated with the old law.

The new reemployment law continues the protection of civilian job rights and benefits for veterans and members of reserve components. It improves enforcement mechanisms, and provides Labor Department assistance in pressing claims against an employer's agencies.

Although it may be several months before final implementing regulations are drafted and published, a summary of the law's new or improved provisions is provided below:

1. The new law expands to five years the cumulative length of time that an individual may be absent for military duty and retain reemployment rights.

2. USERRA provides enhanced protection for disabled veterans, such as the requirement that employers make reasonable efforts to accommodate the disability.

3. Provides that reasonable efforts be made (such as training or retraining) that would enable returning service members to refresh or upgrade their skills so that they might qualify for reemployment.

4. Provides that returning service members be reemployed in the job that they would have attained had they not been absent for military service (with the same seniority, status and pay, as well as other rights and benefits determined by seniority).

5. Provides that individuals performing military duty of more than 30 days may elect to continue employer-sponsored health care for up to 18 months. However, they may be required to pay up to 102 percent of the full premium.

For military service of less than 31 days, health care coverage is provided as if the service member had never left. USERRA clarifies pension plan coverage by making it explicit that all pension plans which are a reward for length of service are protected.

6. For service of less than 31 days, the service member must return at the beginning of the next regularly scheduled work period on the first full day after release from service, taking into account safe travel home plus an 8-hour rest period.

For service of more than 30 days but less than 181 days, the service member must submit an application for reemployment within 14 days of release from service.

For service of more than 180 days, an application for reemployment must be submitted within 90 days of release from service.

Service members or employers who have questions or require assistance are encouraged to call 1-800-442-2VETS or 1-800-442-2838.

Officers get it in the face

Story by Sharon K. Saucier

Did you ever wonder what it was like to be sprayed in the face by that stuff that the police and sheriff's departments carry?

Well you can believe one thing. The officer or deputy carrying it knows well the feeling of the spray in his face.

Every officer that carries the pepper spray, which is used as an intermediate weapon, has to be certified to carry it.

Recently, officers from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department went through certification testing at the Hancock County Justice Facility.

Many described the feeling as "1000 bees stinging their faces at one time" another said that it would bring you to your knees.

The training is used for the purpose of letting the officer know exactly how much to use to control a person and to teach him the decontamination process.

The pepper spray is used to gain control of a violent person with minimum force.

The sheriff's deputies continually attend various training exercises and certification training.
